

5th September 2018

To: Parents of Pupils in the Junior School

Dear Parents,

Roald Dahl Day is the annual, global celebration of the world's number one storyteller, his beloved stories and unforgettable characters. In recognition of this festivity, on Thursday 13th September we are inviting all children to come to school dressed as a character from one of the author's many books or poems. Alternatively, children can simply 'wear something yellow' (This was Dahl's favourite colour!) Items can include hair accessories, socks, t-shirts, etc. or a combination of everything!

During the same week, we are also hosting a book fair in Villa Road. Books will be delivered on Wednesday 12th September so all children will have the opportunity to browse through the selection during school hours and can then pay for their books straight away when their class visit the fair. All monies should be brought into school in a named purse and remain the responsibility of your child. The book fair will close on Tuesday 18th September.

I hope you can join in on our Roald Dahl day and I look forward to seeing the children at the book fair throughout the week.

If you have any further queries, please do not hesitate in speaking to myself or your child's class teacher.

Yours sincerely

Mrs C Keyworth
